

THE ONLY BAR-ROOM FOR WOMEN.

WASHINGTON has the only regular barroom for bicycle girls in the country. It is located at No. 237 Pennsylvania avenue, three blocks from the Capitol, and in all important respects is fitted up like an ordinary saloon; but a large sign proclaims the fact that only non-alcoholic beverages are dispensed. Seventeen different kinds of mixed temperance drinks are furnished to order. The establishment is designed primarily to attract the bicycle girls. Especially in the evenings they can be seen leaning on the rail of the bar and sipping mixed drinks with an air as if they knew they were doing something very wicked and liked it; but nothing stronger than lemonade or ginger pop could they get if they wanted it. The bottles labelled "lemon sours" contain merely lemon juice, to which a squirt of seltzer from a siphon is contributed when the beverage is served. The oak bar is polished so that the girls in short skirts can see their faces in it, while behind the bartender is a big mirror, with the usual paraphernalia of a saloon.

Washington's Regulation Barroom, Where Thirsty Wheelwomen Have Their Choice of Seventeen "Soft Drinks."

McChesney, the proprietor, who is a war veteran, says this his place is the only real barroom in the United States where only temperance drinks are sold.

trip ticket costs $78.35. Thirty dollars will cover the price of a third-class ticket over the route indicated on the map. This will leave them $1.50 a day for 60 days.

TO EUROPE AND BACK ON $200.

THREE years ago two wheelwomen, who had previously been abroad in the regulation luxurious style, made an experiment in cheap travelling in Europe. They had a royal good time for ten weeks on $190. This year the party, increased to four, and headed by Mrs. M. A. Frost, of Northampton, Mass., propose to cover about the same route (as indicated on the map) for $200 from New York back to New York.

The baggage of each member of the party consists of two suits of light, woollen underwear, two pairs of woollen stockings, a black equivoise, a divided skirt of dark mohair, meeting long bicycle boots at the knee, and a few necessary toilet articles.

They will travel second class on the ocean, going to Antwerp by the Red Star Line, and returning from Southampton on the American Line. The round
